Corps National Camping Facilities

Where can you find an Olympic whitewater training center, view dinosaur fossils, catch a glimpse of the endangered golden-cheeked warbler, see an endless parade of ocean-going vessels and tugs, watch salmon making their annual runs up fish ladders, go windsurfing, experience the power of the second largest hydroelectric power plant in the U.S., visit Globally Important Bird Areas, attend an educational program about environmental restoration in the Everglades, set up camp at a "boat-in" campsite, retrace almost 5,000 miles of the Lewis & Clark Corps of Discovery trail, and go fishing at the third largest man-made lake in the U.S.? These opportunities and many more await you at campgrounds on lands and waters managed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. So, load a backpack or RV, add a boat, and come visit us.

Fees
Corps facilities are carefully planned and operated to promote the use of land and water while conserving the natural environment. In addition to recreation management, our stewardship includes forestry, fish and wildlife management, archeology, soil conservation, and more. In order to defray the costs of providing these public services, most Corps parks and recreation areas charge a separate fee for camping, use of swimming beaches and boat launching ramps, and may charge a separate fee for group use. Land around our lakes is often leased for agricultural purposes, or to state parks, state and national wildlife refuges and fish hatcheries, and businesses such as marinas, stores, and resorts. These areas may have additional regulations and charge separate fees.

Rules and Regulations
We want to ensure that your visit is always safe and enjoyable.

Safety in the use of our facilities is your responsibility. We encourage you to observe all safety rules and use common sense while visiting. Be alert to natural hazards such as submerged stumps, logs, rocks, and sandbars. Children should be closely supervised. Feel free to contact a park ranger for more safety information.

Corps lakes and facilities operate under federal regulations established by the Secretary of the Army and administered by federal officials in the interest of public safety and to protect the rights of all visitors. Complete rules and regulations are posted at the parks, and copies are available from the manager's

Caring for Our Lands and Waters
Corps recreation areas belong to you and all Americans. You can help care for your public lands and waters in many ways. Observe rules designed for your safety and for the protection of the park and its natural resources. Help preserve these areas for future generations. Join our volunteer program. Participate in activities like forest, wildlife, or fisheries management, clean-up events, trail maintenance, or volunteering at a visitor center.

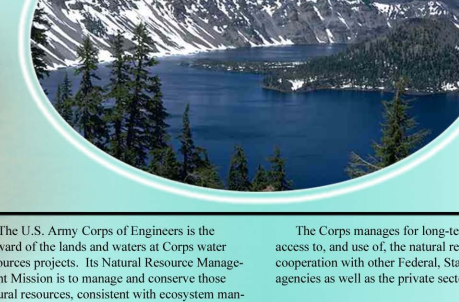
- Check the weather forecast for your outing and plan clothing, equipment, and supplies accordingly
- Let someone know your itinerary and when to expect your return
- Travel and camp only where permitted
- Dispose of waste properly
- Leave what you find - do not remove items
- Minimize campfire impacts
- Respect the environment and the rights of others

The four major causes of drownings are:
- Not wearing a life jacket;
- Abuse of alcohol;
- Lack of sufficient swimming skills;
- Hypothermia

Wear your life jacket!

HEALTHIER US.GOV

For over 200 years the Corps has served the nation with programs such as waterway navigation, floodwater control, disaster assistance, hydroelectric power generation, water supply, environmental restoration, and outdoor recreation. As the leading federal provider of recreation nationwide, one out of every ten Americans visits a Corps lake or recreation area annually to enjoy the 12 million acres of lands and water entrusted to our stewardship. These visitors spend nearly $15 billion on trip expenses and durable goods annually resulting in 500,000 jobs nationwide.



The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is the steward of the lands and waters at Corps water resources projects. Its Natural Resource Management Mission is to manage and conserve those natural resources, consistent with ecosystem management principles, while providing quality public outdoor recreation experiences to serve the needs of present and future generations.

In all aspects of natural and cultural resources management, the Corps promotes awareness of environmental values and adheres to sound environmental stewardship, protection, compliance and restoration practices.

The Corps manages for long-term public access to, and use of, the natural resources in cooperation with other Federal, State, and local agencies as well as the private sector.

The Corps integrates the management of diverse natural resource components such as fish, wildlife, forests, wetlands, grasslands, soil, air, and water with the provision of public recreation opportunities. The Corps conserves natural resources and provides public recreation opportunities that contribute to the quality of American life.
